Forgotten Books, 2018. Hardback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Calyx, 1917: Published Annually by the Students of Washington and Lee University As a teacher of science at Davidson where Dr. Smith began his professional career, he was so full of enthusiasm and inspiration that the students flocked into his classes. But his restless energy could not well be confined within the walls of a class room, and after twelve years of service in the professor's chair, he was elected to the presidency of Davidson. The policy of Dr. Smith since his election to the presidency of Washington and Lee in 1912 has been to develop the students in the best manner possible physically, intellectually and morally. He has constantly directed his efforts toward restricting the number of students and increasing the number of members of the faculty in order that the proportion might become more satisfactory for the best results in teaching. Possessing a mind of scientific and practical bent, he is yet an idealist with a vivid imagination. He is a man without prejudices who deals with abstract principles rather than with individuals. From boyhood Dr. Smith has been an athlete and lover of outdoor sports. Hunting, fishing, boating, swimming and skating have always been his delight, and in one or another of these forms of sport he still takes his recreation. For an avocation he has adopted farming, and nothing gives him more genuine pleasure than to slip away from the busy duties of his office and spend a few days studying the problems of his apple orchard in North Carolina. Dr. Smith is a fluent and effective public speaker. With his remarkable powers of analysis he carries conviction by his appeal to the reason...
