But his attention is chiefly directed to the opinions of Martinus and Bulgarus. The second tract, that of Rogerius Beneventanus De Dissensionibus Dominorum, was first printed in the year 1537. An edition of it was published by Haubold, to whose learned labours the students of ancient jurisprudence are so much indebted. Wenck, another very able professor in the same university who has illustrated the history of the glossatores, is inclined to believe that the author wrote between 1127 and 1158; but Huel fixes upon a period somewhat more recent, and places the composition of the work between 1150 and 1162. Of the materials supplied by his anonymous predecessor, Rogerius seems very freely to have availed himself. Another work of a nameless author, described by a good alliteration as Codicis Chisiani Collectio, follows in the order of arrangement. Hanel...

Reviews

I just began reading this pdf. It is actually written in straightforward words instead of hard to understand. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.
