Excerpt from Watsons Magazine, Vol. 4: March, 1906 That's a pretty defense for the railroads, isn't it? According to that kind of logic we must not enforce the law against people who steal because Hoke Smith, as a lawyer, has actually defended thieves. Logic of that sort would compel me to antagonize the law against murder because as a lawyer, I defended dozens of men charged with that crime. Hoke Smith's position as a candidate for governor is one thing; his position as attorney in law cases is another; and there is no use trying to fool the people about it. If the railroads have made an illegal combination we must smash it, no matter who the lawyers were that represented the railroads at that time. My editorial states that the railroads treated our Railroad Commission with contempt by refusing to obey its rules, its decisions, its orders. As an example, I cited the case of the town of Flovilla, Georgia, where the railroads had for two years refused to provide the accommodations for passengers on their way to the Indian Spring. Mr. Howell...
