Excerpt: . . . IX Other men labored; and ye are entered into their labors. --John 4: 38 THERE are among Seventh-day Baptists those who believe it is wrong to celebrate Christmas. This feeling, which is rapidly growing less, was once quite general in our churches. In order to hold the interest of the children and young people through the trying holiday season, at Milton Junction, Wisconsin, they used frequently to have an entertainment, very like a Christmas entertainment, but which was held on December 23. December 23 is Founders Day among Seventh-day Baptists. Now it is not at all unlikely that there are those present who never heard of Founders Day among Seventh-day Baptists, and who could not connect next Tuesday, December 22, with any sort of anniversary except that it is two days before Christmas. The text this morning is John 4: 38, Other men labored; and ye are entered into their labors. A theme suggested by the passing of the 231st anniversary of the organization of the first Seventh-day Baptist Church in America. It is not altogether unlikely that the treatment of this subject may be liable to the criticism of not being a sermon; but yet this text is not merely pretext, as you will see before we have done. The application of this text, to this people, at this time, is very pertinent and vital. Other men labored; and ye are entered into their labors. So far as I know the first Seventh-day...
