Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Soil Moisture: A Record of the Amount of Water Contained in Soils During the Month of May, 1895 Sir: I have the honor to transmit herewith a report upon the amount of water contained in some important types of soil in different portions of the United States. The marked effect of different amounts of rain upon the yield and quantity Of crops is familiar to all in the everyday experience of farmers. It will be seen from these records that, owing to the difference in the texture of soils, even with the same amount of rainfall, soils retain very different amounts of water. As crops require very different conditions of water for their best development, this difference in the water content of soils very largely accounts for the peculiar adaptation of certain soils -to certain classes of crops. A good truck soil in a favorable season will contain about 5 per cent, or one twentieth of its weight, of water; and grass land, on the other hand, should contain 20 per cent, or one-fifth of its weight, of water; These are...
