Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Collection of North Caroliniana In 1904, James Boyd, a steel and railroad magnate, purchased acres in Southern Pines, and built a home. He christened this new estate Weymouth, after a town he had visited in England. Set amidst a magnificent stand of virgin longleaf pines, it served as a country manor where his grandson and namesake, James, often came as a boy to repair frail health and explore the imposing pine forest and surrounding countryside. Later young James went to Princeton and earned a master s degree at Cambridge. After serving as an ambulance driver during World War I, an experience which left his health even more fragile, he returned to Weymouth for recovery. In 1919, he and his new wife, the former Katharine Lamont, spent their honeymoon in the house, which by now James Boyd co-owned with his brother, Jackson. The following year, he and Katharine moved to Weymouth and began redesigning it. They moved part of the original house across Connecticut Avenue to become part of Jackson s new home, now known as the Campbell House. To the remaining structure, they added a second story and two wings, enlarging the Georgian-style house to square feet.
