LINES OF FLIGHT - POEMS (PAPERBACK)

Able Muse Press, Canada, 2011. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Lines of Flight is the first full-length collection from Catherine Chandler, an acclaimed American poet of quiet elegance whose simple style belies the range and depth of her poems. She is equally at ease with poems of nature as with those of people, relationships, landscapes and realms--the domestic, the foreign, even those scanning the vast unknown of space or the esoterica of science. These poems, carefully crafted with formal dexterity in contemporary idiom, are deployed with precision in a showcase of forms such as the villanelle, sapphic, ballad, pantoum, triolet, nonce, and the sonnet--Chandler's specialty, for which she won the Howard Nemerov Sonnet Award. PRAISE FOR LINES OF FLIGHT: Catherine Chandler's poems--I think particularly of the sonnet Vermont Passage --offer the reader a plain eloquence, a keen eye, and a graceful development of thought. Elsewhere in this fine book, she puts her gifts at the service of wit, as in the little anti-poetic poem Supernova. Lines of Flight is altogether a lively performance. - Richard Wilbur One of the things that poetry--when it's very good--does better than anything else is to suggest conflicting things at the same time and confront the reader with the possibility that both may be true. This book, which is extraordinarily good, does that to perfection. - Rhina P. Espaillat (from the Foreword ) Catherine Chandler's Lines of Flight is a marvelously accomplished first collection. Even to call it a first collection seems somehow misleading; it is a first collection as Housman's A Shropshire Lad was. These are poems that have been long meditated and patiently crafted; they are distillations of experience captured in exquisite measures. There seems to be no form...
