T, that rather held it better men should perish one by one, Than that earth should stand at gaze like Joshua s moon in Ajalon1 Not in vain the distance beacons. Forward, forward, let us range. Let the great world spin forever down the ringing grooves of change. Through the shadow of the globe we sweep into the younger day; Better fifty years of Europe than a cycle of Cathay. III. I THE FUTURE OF THE RACES. Having shown that there are diverse races, or species of mankind, and that the mingling of these distinct species inevitably leads to social decay and national suicide, it may not be amiss to glance at a possible, nay, a certain, future, wherein the great question, as to the proper relation of these different races to each other, shall be correctly solved. Poets have dreamed of a...
