Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Mothers-in-Law There were pearls in her small ears under the cluster ing, naturally curly, naturally gold-coloured hair, real pearls; round her bare white throat was a necklace of medium-sized, well-matched pearls; false ones. How gloves were as white as snow-wreaths, her narrow high heeled shoes matched the gloves, and her linen coat and skirt were without a wrinkle, as indeed they should have been, for she had got up at seven to iron them secretly with her treasure of an electric iron. Her apple-green silk sunshade on her shoulder, her gold mesh purse swinging from her hand, she walked down the path to the garden door which led to the steep short-cut to the shops. An old man who was nailing an untidy, ?owering creeper to a newly mended pergola, looked up as she passed him and bade her good morning.
