Excerpt from Paganism in the Papal Church The striking resemblance between the religious practices of Hinduism and those of the Roman Catholic Church cannot fail to be noticed by those familiar with the two systems. Intelligent Hindus affirm that there is little to distinguish them. On one occasion, after addressing a Hindu audience, one of my hearers said that only a little time before, he entered a church and saw a vessel of holy water which was used for washing away sin, an image of a goddess before which the people were bowing in worship, and people confessing to a priest, hoping to obtain pardon for their sins. He asked me wherein all this differed from bathing in the Ganges, worshipping the goddess Durga, and seek ing salvation from a guru or confessor. I had to admit that in principle there was little difference between the heathen and. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
