Excerpt from Some Aspects of Indian Education Your President said something about not being afraid. Every man should be afraid; but there is only one thing to be afraid of - the only thing in the world that can hurt him - himself. There is no civilization, no Government, that can make a man a liar or a thief. There is but one power to do that - his own - and therefore that is the only thing he need fear. Because I believe truth should appeal to all, and this special truth doubly to Catholic Americans, I think it well to speak to you on one of the most important problems in the United States, one in which every man and every part of the United States are concerned. I imagine, and have for years imagined, that one of the ancient fables was something more than a fairy tale - the fable of Procrustes - the fabulous giant with his patent bed, the giant who went out upon the highway and waylaid all who passed and compelled them to partake of his hospitality and who insisted that they must fit his bed. If they were too long he would chop off their legs; if too short, he would rack them. And I think, gentlemen, we know that giant, although Theseus thought he killed him 2500 years ago. Who can he be, but that smiling bully, Philanthropy? About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
