By Anthony Trollope

Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from He Knew He Was Right When Louis Trevelyan was twenty-four years old, he had all the world before him where to choose; and, among other things, he chose to go to the Mandarin Islands, and there fell in love with Emily Rowley, the daughter of Sir Marmaduke, the governor. Sir Marmaduke Rowley, at this od of his life, was a respectable middle ed public servant, in goodperlelpute, who had, however, as yet achieved or himself neither an exalted position nor a large fortune. He had been governor of many islands, and had never lacked employment; and now, at the age of fifty, found himself at the Mandarins, with a salary of a year, living in a temperature at which 80 in the shade is considered to be cool, with eight daughters, and not a shilling saved. A governor at the M is social by nature and hospitable on principle, cannot save mone in the islands even on a year when he has eight da hteu s. An at the Mandarins, though hospitality is a duty, the gen men who ate Sir...
