JESUS WAS A PSYCHOLOGIST BY DAVID HINE The Jesus jigsaw When the thought first occurred to me that Jesus was a psychologist, I was excited, because it was like seeing a pattern in a jigsaw puzzle that had baffled me for most of my life. I had always been interested in the parables of Jesus. I gathered them together, noticed similarities; I read books about them; a couple of the parables became the guiding principles of my life. But no matter how much I looked there were still some that didn't make sense, and readers who have been Bible students will have hit the same problem. For instance, what would you make of an employer who throws his staff in jail, or another employer who gives some of his workers 12 hours pay for one hour's work, or a father who throws a party for a son who has just blown the family fortune, or a king who has his managers tortured. If these are pictures of God, as we were taught in Sunday school, then this is a pretty disorganized deity: he doesn't know whether to love people or hate them. These pieces don't fit. But if you love the parables, as I do, you come back to them from time to time. That's what I was doing a few years ago. I was preparing to go back into the Methodist ministry, after a long break, and part of my preparation was having another look at the parables. Another part was updating my study of psychology. I had studied it as part of my original ministry training, but I wanted to study the main new version today, called cognitive therapy. With this approach, if a client looks...
