Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from British Emergency Legislation During the Present War The British public has been very generous whenever appeals were made to it to contribute funds or gifts in kind, either for British or for Allied charitable purposes. As it appeared that the generosity of the public was sometimes taken advantage of by impostors, the War Charities Act, 1916, laid down rules as to the registration of war charities and their supervision.
