This work is an attempt to fulfil that promise; but it may also, perhaps, be considered as a supplement to the treatise of our President, the Bishop of Salisbury, on the Rite of Consecration of Churches, especially in the Church of England, which he read as a paper before the Church Historical Society on December 8, 1898, and which was published by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge in the following year. It is gratifying to be able to remark that one of the chief points insisted upon by our President in his paper, that the solemn celebration of the Eucharist by the bishop is of the essence or substance of the rite of consecration, receives full support from the practice of the seventeenth century English bishops. It would seem at first sight that one of the most fruitful sources of the texts of the Forms and Orders of the Consecrations of Churches in the seventeenth century would be the episcopal registers. But it is not so for many reasons. First, the destruction or disappearance of these registers representing long stretches of time, or for the whole seventeenth century; as at Lincoln, Durham, and Bristol. Secondly, the disappearance of the registers of particular bishops; as of Andrewes at Winchester and Mountain at London. Thirdly, the imperfect...
