McIntire of Danby, Sunday, September seventeen. John 10: 10: came that they may have life and have it abundantly--above the common. John 6: 47: He that believeth on me hath eternal life. John 17: 3: And this is life eternal that they should know thee, the only true God. UR question this morning is not new. It is as old as the consciousness of man. In some form it has been asked since the dawn of history. It is a question which on the surface seems very simple and easily answered, yet which has never been definitely answered, and which, I believe, cannot be answered definitely in terms of human speech. In Christian dogma and doctrine attempted answers have taken many forms of expression, but we find therein no invariable and comprehensive formula. The Bible itself, our rule and guide, while it is filled with the facts of Salvation, has no single and uniform theory of Salvation, or definition of its nature and process. The history of human experience, which is replete with manifestations of the power of Salvation, and the significance of Salvation, has no concerted theory of its meaning, or direction for its acquirement. It would seem as if so great a thing--a thing which pertains to finite creatures in point of time, and yet which is so closely and inseparably linked with the Infinite and the Eternal, could not be brought within the limits of...
