Excerpt from Reports on the Present State of Her Majesty s Colonial Possessions, Vol. 1: Transmitted With the Blue Books for the Year 1870; West Indies Law 3 of 1870 abolishes the offices of the clerks of the peace and clerks to the magistrates, and makes better provision for the discharge of all executive magisterial duties than was made under the former system. The old Statute, 23 Vic., cap. 18, for providing and regulating the salaries and fees of the clerks of the peace and clerks of the magistrates, expired on the 31st December, 1866, and was only continued in force by temporary laws until all the arrangements for the remodelling of the offices in question could be carried into effect. By this law pensions were granted to the clerks of the peace and magistrates clerks, in compensation for the abolition of office; and the office of clerk of petty sessions has been created instead. Those clerks of the peace who chose to accept the new office (which involves the abandonment of private practice, the devotion of the holders whole time to the public duties, and considerable locomotion in parochial circuits) were appointed thereto. These clerks of petty sessions are paid wholly by salary. The fees formerly paid to clerks of the peace are by this law converted into stamp duties, the proceeds of which form a part of the ordinary revenues of the Colony. The fixed allowances of the clerks of petty sessions, exclusive of travelling allowances, are covered or nearly covered by the stamp duties. The actual net saving already made on the whole scheme, after deducting from the gross saving a sum of for...
