Behold the successive shades of the mighty; see how swiftly they seem to shoot through the scene, as you pursue the story of the countries where they acted their part; their entrances and their exits have but a moment between them; the suns of glory, one after another, rise and set; the reigns of princes course one another with a rapid flight; the stirring spirits of different periods present themselves to the reader, and vanish; occupy a page, and disappear; the time in which each individual in the long procession is going by, is but as an instant; each fleeting passenger, in his turn, is departed, while the word of admiration is in your mouth: --Is this a glory to content a great mind? Shall we suffer our dignity, or our felicity, to be confined within such limits as these? Shall we permit so small a room as this to enclose our happiness? Shall we imprison our expectations in a point, when the door of immensity is thrown open to them? Let us be ambitious of abiding in honour, and in happiness. Let no believer in the Gospel content himself with meteor and mortal glories, the fires of which, however splendid, are speedily...
