Excerpt from Reconnaissance of the Borax Deposits of Death Valley and Mohave Desert For the purpose of locating outcrops of lake beds and studying their relations and contents, the writer made a rapid reconnaissance across southern California in the spring of 1900. The trip was too hastily made to permit of detailed examinations or of observations much beyond the line of travel, but many facts were found which have a bearing upon the occurrence of borax and its distribution, and these are embodied in the following paper. Of necessity the writer does not enter into a systematic treatise. Of the subject, but presents, in the form of an itinerary, the data gathered during this trip.
