Excerpt from American Stage Designs: An Illustrated Catalogue of the Models, Drawings and Photographs Exhibited at the Bourgeois Galleries in New York, April 5th to 26th, 1919 With Articles Without the theories, progress for them or progress for us would have been impossible. Without their accomplishment, progress for us would be only a thing to dream of. For under the Shuberts - which is only an impolite and impolitic way of saying under the Broadway system of piecemeal production America could never study, experiment and accomplish as the old world did in those German and Russian producing theatres where groups of artists worked constantly together. Fortunately that work has been done for us. Of course we need more experiment, and we need and are getting the theatres where that is possible; yet, now that we have models to work from, even our Broadway system can reproduce and to some extent develop the types of production given us by the recent and international past before the war. It had even begun to do so while Europe fought. Indeed, America is at the point where criticism should begin to take the place of indiscriminate enthusiasm. The exhibition Of sketches and models at the Bourgeois Galleries in New York and the essays by native stage artists to which this is, in a certain sense, an introduction, demonstrate how far things have already moved. We need not fear to injure our cause by criticism. We are more likely now to kill it with kindness. There was a time when the faintest buds of the footlights had to be nourished with applause. We hailed much extremely bad work. Perhaps it was because we...
