D: Presented on His Resignation From the Wardenship of the Columbia College Law School, 1891 Heaven does with us as we with torches do, Not light them for themselves; for if our virtues Did not go forth of us, t were all alike As if we had them not. Spirits are not finely touched, But to fine issues, nor Nature never lends The smallest scruple of her excellence, But, like a thrifty goddess, she determines Herself the glory of a creditor, Both thanks and use. Heartily glad are all the instructors in this School that the torches here lighted have not been lighted for themselves, but have shone out to guide many a troubled wanderer, and save from many a fall. And as to men here trained, their virtues have gone forth of them, and they have returned in abundant tribute both thanks and use. Such have been the purposes and ideals of Columbia College Law School from its origin down to the present time. Its external history is briefly told. It was first established in 1858, and Professor Theodore W. Dwight, who prior to that time had been a professor of law in Hamilton College, was placed in sole charge of the department of instruction in municipal law. The School found its first home in the Historical Society building, at the corner of Second Avenue and Eleventh Street. Afterwards, as the number of students increased from year to year, it was removed, first to 37 Lafayette Place, a few years later to 8 Great Jones Street, and finally, after a few years more, to the grounds of...
