You have heard about the Texas Rangers? said the Deacon to me one night in the San Antonio Club. Yes? Well, come up to my rooms, and I will introduce you to one of the old originals-dates way back in the thirties -there aren t many of them left now-and if we can get him to talk, he will tell you stories that will make your eyes hang out on your shirt front. We entered the Deacon s cosey bachelor apartments, where I was introduced to Colonel Rip Ford, of the old-time Texas Rangers. I found him a very old man, with a wealth of snow-white hair and beard-bent, but not withered. As he sunk on his stiffened limbs into the arm-chair, we disposed ourselves quietly and almost reverentially, while we lighted cigars. We began the approaches by which we hoped to loosen the history of a wild past from one of the very few tongues which can still wag on the days when the Texans, the Co-manches, and the Mexicans chased one another over the plains of Texas, and shot and stabbed to find who should inherit the land.
