Congressional Sales Office, 2003. OCLC Number: (OCoLC)51721469 Subject: Computers -- Access control -- China. Excerpt: . . . 11 nology, and we have not even started version one of a counter-strategy yet. If we do not do something soon, they may be able to close off the country completely and obtain absolute control of their net before we can do anything about it. A fair guess is that, by the Olympics in 2008, it will be much too late to act. Our window of opportunity is now, at this moment. The U. S. Government is the only organization that has the power to mount an effective counter against this type of censorship. Independent efforts, such as mine, by volunteer groups will be ad hoc and there will be no coordination between the releases of the various projects. A well-funded, centralized program could plan application releases so they occur at regular intervals in order to keep the Chinese authorities constantly scrambling to keep up. In other words, the U. S. agency in charge could coordinate and plan a global strategy that would be much more effective than the current ad hoc state of affairs. Centralizing this type of activity also allows for the possibility of inter-operation between the projects and allowing more advanced features in these projects, eliminating redundancy. There are few, if any, commercial possibilities for this type of software, which is why the government is the only organization with the power to fund this type of activity on the scale that is required. The amount of money proposed in the Global Internet..
