

Three Mughal Poets: Mir. Sauda. Mir Hasan

By Khurshidul Islam and Ralph Russell

Oxford University Press, New Delhi, India, 2004. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Third Impression. The three great poets presented in this volume - Mir, Mir Hasan and Sauda - lived in Delhi, or in its general vicinity, in the eighteenth century during a time of widespread violence and disaster. The Mughal Empire was crumbling and disintegrating internally as the great feudal nobles fought among themselves for control of the emperor. In this atmosphere of misery, demoralization, and despair occurred the first major flowering of Urdu literature. Sauda, the first to be discussed, wrote poems in all the main classical forms, but he was an unequalled satirist in an age that cried for satire, and it is that portion of his work that is considered here. Mir Hasan also was born in Delhi and probably lived there until after the occupation, massacre, and looting of 1739, which occurred when he was about fourteen. Like his two contemporaries, he wrote in all the classical forms and excelled in one, to which he devoted most of his effort. In his case it was the mansavi, a long narrative poem in rhymed couplets often telling a love story. Mir, perhaps the greatest of the three,...

DOWNLOAD

READ ONLINE

[2.31 MB]

Reviews

Basically no words to describe. We have read through and i also am sure that i am going to going to read once more once again later on. You may like just how the article writer compose this publication.

-- Mrs. Jane Quitzon DDS

The ideal publication i at any time read through. It really is writer in easy phrases and never difficult to understand. Its been designed in an remarkably easy way which is merely right after i finished reading through this publication by which actually transformed me, affect the way i think.

-- Jaqueline Flatley