Excerpt: . . . Of HORSES (a). THE deserts of Tartary, with some islands to the east of India, and, now, of America also, breed wild Horses. I have been assured, and analogy makes it probable, that they live together in small herds, each of which has one of the most generous for a leader. So Elephants, Monkeys, Bulls, Asses, Camels, Elks, Antelopes, Deer, in a word, all animals that feed on herbs and fruits, appear to have a powerful impulse, which directs them to live in society. They every where find food in abundance, and have therefore fewer objects of contention; and each family, while it increases, daily learns, that a union of their powers is the best protection against their numerous carnivorous devourers. The same instinctive foresight, guided by cruel experience, bids them remain se (a) The Horse is called Asp, in Persian; Hejsan, in...
