C., January 4th and 5th, 1915 The causes which led to the formation of the National Popular Government League may be briefly stated. Organized effort to secure the Initiative, Referendum and Recall had been going on for some twenty years. Many state leagues had been started, several of which were dead or inactive. Two national organizations had successively ceased to exist. Some twelve state leagues were in existence in varied stages of vigor and efficiency. Nearly all farm and labor organizations were in favor of these principles; some were doing things, others not. But the movement at the time the National Popular Government League was formed was entirely sporadic, localized, and without co-ordination. First: There was no national Clearing House of Information whose business it was to collect and distribute accurate data concerning the status and practical workings of popular government measures, thus enabling the workers in every state and city to take advantage of the failures and successes of every other state and city. Second: There was no central bureau of recognised authority to which a legislator, or a person drafting a measure, could apply for the most effective and approved forms of amendments and laws embodying these principles. Third: The special interests and the reactionary press were conducting a subtle, powerful nation-wide campaign of misrepresentation upon these measures. Their lobbyists and tricky politicians were at work at every state legislature and charter commission where these measures...
