The risks posed by this increasing Consequences and evolving threat are demonstrated in media and other reports of actual and potential attacks and disruptions, such as those cited below. In March 2005, security consultants within the electric industry reported that hackers were targeting the U. S. electric power grid and had gained access to U. S. utilities electronic control systems. Computer security specialists reported that, in a few cases, these intrusions had caused an impact. While officials stated that hackers had not caused serious damage to the systems that feed the nations power grid, the constant threat of intrusion has heightened concerns that electric companies may not have adequately fortified their defenses against a potential catastrophic strike. In January 2005, a major university reported that a hacker had broken into a database containing 32,000 student and employee Social Security numbers, potentially compromising their finances and identities.
