You think the numbers practically could be reduced if you had a compulsory retirement at 60 invariable?--If you had a compulsory retirement at 60 you would increase one charge anil diminish the other, and you might get a saving to thu Sute in that way. 2631. (Chairman.) You would diminish the effective charge by having omwwhat younger Civil Servant taking the place of the older?---Yes. 2632. (Mr. Fletcher Muulton.) That would lower tht general salaries of the Civil Service?--I es, therefore the cost to the State; that would, so to speak, provide something out of which these additional benefits to Civil Servants could be given. 2633. (Chairman.) Does not that appear to you a somewhat irregular way of providing for this pecuniary problem?--Well, I find in practice that scales of pay vary from time to time. I inquired at the Post Office, and found that the wages of the postmen vary in different towns, and I inquired of the Excise people, and found that their salaries had varied at different times, so that the administrative charges are constantly changing. In fact they change with the conditions of modern life. And the only point that I wish to make now is that the two absolutely hang together, that if you alter the scale of salaries you alter the pension charges. 2634. Yes?--I do not say...
