Teller of Colorado, on the President s Message, in the Senate of the United States, Mar, 15, 1888 The Senate having under consideration the resolution submitted by Mr. Sherman December 19, 1887, to refer the President s annual message to the Committee on Finance - Mr. Teller said: Mr. President: I shall endeavor not to detain the Senate at any very great length, as what I shall have to say will not be in the nature of a general discussion of theoretical propositions, but will be rather a presentation of facts which illustrate and bear upon the issue presented. At the commencement of this session the President of the United States sent a rather remarkable document to the Senate and House of Representatives; it was called his annual message, but it was devoted exclusively to the question of import duties and a reduction of the surplus revenues of the country. There has been since that time considerable discussion in the Senate over this message, and, it seems to me, on the part of the friends of the Administration, a disposition to avoid the real issue presented by the President. Although we have been told by all on the other side of the Chamber who have spoken on the subject that the message was one of great ability and entitled the Executive to great praise at the hands of the people for the courageous manner in which he had presented this matter to the public, yet I believe, without a single exception, all who have spoken in defense of the Administration and in accordance with the...
