Excerpt from Improvement Era, Vol. 9: Organ of Young Men s Mutual Improvement Associations; June, 1906 Thus far we have followed Paul over rugged mountains of grandeur which God had made. Now we enter with him a city whose beautiful works of art show how wonderful are the powers which God has given to the mind of man. We have seen him among ighorant men; now we find him among those who are learned, but who have not the true wisdom which comes from God only. We have seen him rejoicing by the quiet riverside with the few women worshipers of the one true God; now he is saddened by the multitude or worshipers of many false gods. We have seen him preaching Christ to a little company in an inner dungeon; now he preaches the same gospel to unbelieving throngs.
