Born and raised in Lexington, Kentucky, Gerald L. Coleman writes with a clarity, depth of perception, and intensity that has led to his poems being published in anthologies and literary journals alike. This long-awaited collection of poetry is a triumph of literary ambition and the sublime. Praise for The Road is Long: Affrilachia has been waiting for this book for a long time. Spend time in these pages and experience why we offer up pepper! Frank X Walker Kentucky Poet Laureate 2013-2014 Author of Isaac Murphy: I Dedicate This Ride the road is long, is a sorghum of love and truth; rage and triumph; uprising and love making. From Baltimore to Lexington, Kentucky, Coleman s poems are filled with black boys building on the curve/of an hypotenuse/rather than the/ inelegant vertices/ of a square. Black nerd, comic book philosopher, pastor poet and keeper of Affrilachian truth, Gerald Coleman has done the work and here is the proof. Kelly Norman Ellis...
