Collins Pub San Francisco, San Francisco, California, U.S.A., 1987. Hardcover. Condition: New. Dust Jacket Condition: Fine/New. 1st Edition. NEW! Gift Quality First Edition HC copy, still in publisher's original cardboard box. 236 pp., profusely illustrated in color. In 1987, 50 Western and 50 Soviet photographers spread out across the Soviet Union and captured on film a day in a country that stood at the apex of remarkable change as it celebrated the 70th anniversary of the Great October Revolution. As the Soviet people looked back on decades of war and famine, conquest and achievement, and forward to sweeping changes during a time of new leadership and openness, the photographers were granted unprecedented access to homes, factories, schools and even prisons. They traveled to all 15 Soviet republics and across 11 time zones. They ventured into areas that have been closed to outsiders for centuries, and they came back with candid images of the daily life of the people behind the headlines, capturing a lost Soviet era, the twilight of a country. This Fn copy is NEW, with a strong binding and clean, unmarked pages. In an equally Fn DJ. No finer copy! Size: 14-1/4 x 10-1/4 Inches.
