Excerpt: .It was a mouse that set the lion free. Be wise in time;-- which means--don t go it blind, And everlastingly come in behind. Console yourself in trouble with this thought;--You don t get half the punishment you ought. Fortune coquettes in ways both rare and pleasing; Some take the snuff while others do the sneezing. Successful financiering now consists In giving creditors the various twists. Bluster and Brag will never fill the bill; Tis the still swine that gobble up the swill. In seeking great things, ne er despise the less; It s but a stel) twixt failure and success. Vice only needs a little virtuous paint, To make a sinner seem a finished saint. Historic records amply testify That good men can act naughty--on the sly. A crumb of consolation for the poor--They easier lift the latch to Heaven s door. The hand of Providence takes on a grip That is not prone to let its business slip. Hope spins a thread that somehow catches on, Long after every real chance is gone. God was the architect who planned this earth; This is a hint to those who doubt its worth. Bury your hates; this life is all too brief To have its pleasure marred by needless grief. Columbus had a very faint idea Of what a show he started over here. Hope is perennial, else the poor old heart Would shrink and dry up till it fell apart. Your hearty eater seldom...
