Outskirts Press, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Calatori represents a lifetime of Traveling for author Ghizela Altman, not just to vacation spots and for leisure, but also the various destinations of her life. Her destiny. All of the ups and downs, as she Traveled on the waves of her life. But, you have to understand the first 40 years of her life in Romania, the Traveling was not positive. The only places she could travel where within the country and one of them included being relocated from her hometown of Podu-Turcului to Tecuci, as all of the Jews were at the time. Her father also got relocated to what was essentially a concentration camp, although the Romanians labeled this a work camp. So, you see, a lot of those 40 years seemed like a prison to Ms. Altman. But, there were wonderful and great memories, as well, such as meeting Marcel Altman, who would go on to be her husband of 36 years, her father Sammy, who was as full of life and as strong as anyone she d ever know. Still, when she got the opportunity to emigrate to her homeland of Israel, she took it in 1970. That set off a chain of travel and a new life completely. She not only traveled for leisure, but for the betterment of her family, which would soon include son, Dany. Traveling through this journey we call life, would eventually take her to the United States of America in 1980. So many things would happen during her so far, 35 years in this country. Dany would grow and mature. She lost the love of her life, Marcel, though she did gain a new romantic companion in George Ziskin. However, she loved and...
