The toxic pathology about sex taught by the church in the 1950s drove me to the brink of suicide, but at age 14 I was given the type of experience that the Gnostics called an Awakening. I hope to explain its importance to those who can hear. It saved my life and set me on a path of pursuing truth wherever it might lead. I am still on that path, because it never ends. At age 23 I was given another such experience, which showed that my mind is not what I thought. I have been exploring its implications ever since as well. At age 27 I helped found the New Reformed Orthodox Order of the Golden Dawn as one Tradition of the Craft, which is a new religion now meeting the needs of at least a million people. I am glad I was able to do that. My MA in Poetry got me hired as an editor for Scientific American Books; then I earned a Ph. D. in Berkeley in order to become a better writer. And just before I turned 36, I got myself to Alcoholics Anonymous and began working toward another sort of spiritual awakening. That path also never ends, because it is the same path. Of the autobiographies I've read, I liked Bertrand Russells the most until I realized his story was fundamentally dishonest. Given his outspoken beliefs, one would expect him to have had an exuberant sex life and so he did, but not a hint of that appears in his life story. I cannot leave my sexuality out of my own story, because, given my childhood, developing an adequate theory of sexuality...
