Is there to be no effort this term to enlist a new choir? A new one, understand. Junior exhibitions we judge are to become things of the past, from the fact that University Chapel is rapidly assuming the form of several new recitation-rooms; a movement necessitated, we imagine, by the increased number in the classes in late years. 68 is excepted. Winter seems to think the lap of Spring a comfortable resting-place, if we may judge from the lingering looks of the former. The state of the paths in the yard after the late storm show that the engineer of the snow-plough has pretty indefinite ideas on the subject of straight lines. He most probably never studied Puckle, and is content with his...
