Reviews

Undoubtedly, this is the best function by any writer. This really is for those who statte there was not a really worth reading. Its been written in an exceptionally basic way which is merely right after i finished reading through this book by which really transformed me, change the way i really believe.

(Dr. Deonte Hammes DDS)

Excerpt: . . . and distributed to the various officials according to their particular desires. As a laborer in the statistical workshop for more than 25 years I am prepared to sympathize most cordially with Mr. Taylors feelings and to join in the complaint to which he gives expression in such a clear and emphatic manner. Of course from my own experience I can only speak for the mining industry, though I have been informed that mine operators are not the only citizens of this Republic who are put to trouble and expense by the numerous demands made upon them for statistical information. Transportation interests, manufacturers, and public corporations are like sufferers, and personally I have been somewhat surprised by the patience with which they have submitted to the inquisition. The census reports, which are included among those of which Mr. Taylor complains, are for the most part only of decennial recurrence, and except for the mass of detail usually asked for should not be made the basis of complaint. But the situation is becoming more aggravated each year. Since Mr. Taylors paper was presented the Federal income-tax law has gone into effect and the Federal Trade Commission has been established. Both of these require additional statistical information not called for by other Federal and State bureaus, and some of it is of decidedly inquisitorial character, while in a number of the States within the last two or three years legislation providing for workmens compensation for injuries or...
