Archipelago, 2013. Book Condition: New. Brand New, Unread Copy in Perfect Condition. A+ Customer Service! Summary: "Romania's greatest living writer." -- Andrew Solomon, The New Yorker " Blinding asks much from readers as it shifts between tender family history, Ceausescu-era satire and visionary fantasies that recalls William S Burroughs. Stay with him: epiphanies and beauties abound in this deliriously ambitious work." -- A Fiction in Translation Book of the Year, The Independent ".a hot tip for the Nobel Prize in Literature this year. Cartarescu demands much as he scrambles memory, satire, fantasy and near-mystical speculation, but amply rewards your commitment. [.] Above all, Blinding insists that memory can make a world. "The past is everything, the future nothing." From that past - which stretches back to encompass all of human history - Cartarescu has fashioned a novel of visionary intensity. Bring on the next instalment - soon." -- Boyd Tonkin, The Independent "As Borges said when Joyce's Ulysses was published, this text does not aspire to be a novel, but a cathedral.A novel with a strong original voice, a unique flavor, and well-crafted poetic language, Blinding is a delight and a surprise, a major discovery of this year. This literary experience will bring new attention to Romanian literature, a cultural destination that for decades eluded North American audiences." -- Los Angeles Review of Books ".Cartarescu astounds without resorting to showiness, and the sheer energy and exuberance of his language is intoxicating. What's more, his extra-sensory vision of Bucharest (and beyond) is mind-expanding." -- Minneapolis Star Tribune "Nothing can prepare you for the scope and ambition of Blinding , the first volume of Romanian author Mircea Cartarescu's acclaimed trilogy. A phantasmagorical blend of fiction, memoir, surrealism, entomology, war, sex, death and destruction, the novel is, to use its own words, on...
