The letters t, c, and m, in the sixth column indicate the particular method employed. This Comet was first seen at Green Point on January i 8th, but owing to the intervening position of Table Mountain, its head did not become visible from the Observatory until January 22d, when it was seen for about iom only before setting behind the mountain. The observations on this date are, in consequence, rather hurried and uncertain. From January 23d to 27th inclusive, only momentary glimpses of the Comet were obtained through cloud. January 28th, length of the tail 180. Jan. 29th. The Comet seen for a few minutes only through a break in the clouds, but was then partially hid by a neighbouring tree; the observations are not good. Jan. 30th. The first good view of the Comet was obtained this evening. The nucleus is bright, but not well defined; the light becomes more diffused when viewed with higher powers. It is slightly elongated in a direction at right angles to the axis of the tail. No stellar point visible. There is no trace of any division of the tail; the light appears to be of uniform intensity throughout its breadth, and both borders are equally well defined. By bringing the head and the extremity of the tail alternately into the centre of the field of view of the finder, and reading the circles, I find the length of the tail to be...
