Not illustrated. 1849 Excerpt: .clear, if the striker pocket his opponent s ball, that the next stroke will be much against him; but if he walk through the white ball, bringing it out of the baulk, and make a losing hazard off it, the winning of the game will then be nearly certain. The losing hazard thus described can always be accomplished if there is room for the object ball to pass without kissing. LOSING HAZARD. When the balls are in this position, and the player s ball in hand, he must play to hole it in the right-hand corner pocket. It will require a strong side twist, and he must not play it with more strength than sufficient to double his opponent s ball over to the red. In all probability, the balls will not be more than four inches apart, and will leave, consequently, the prospect of a good break. CANON. The balls being thus placed, and in a direct line, the novice would believe them to be safe: nevertheless, it is almost a certain canon. It is made by a push. The centre ball knocks the other a little on one side, and the player s ball catches it while it is moving. Mr. Kentfield can teach any one to make this invaluable canon in one lesson. J TO MAKE A BAULK. This stroke is of infinite use, and it is one worthy of much practice. Strike the red ball nearly a three-quarter ball. It will reach...
