Excerpt from The Federal Role in Privatization: Hearing Before the Subcommittee on Government Management, Information, and Technology of the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight, House of Representatives, One Hundred Fourth Congress, First Session, March 14, 1995 Facing a $16 million revenue Shortfall for our next fiscal year, the city of Syracuse, like many others, is hard pressed to support any service which cannot be best described as essential to the health and safety of its residents. Our budgetary position, similar to so many others throughout the country, has forced us to analyze other methods of delivery of non essential services without added taxpayer expense. Based on competitive market conditions, fiscal constraints and decreasing levels of service, numerous State and local governments across the United States are reviewing their approach to public sector management of infrastructure, assets and services. A primary area of focus has been the introduction of entrepreneurial private sector management, and even ownership, of public sector infrastructure assets and services.
