Forgotten Books. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 148 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.3in. Excerpt from Conservation of the Spiritual Life, as Taught by St. John. Conservation has come to be a large movement, and it now has a place in the thought of educators, ministers, statesmen, presidents, and philanthropists. Conservation calls forth the best that is in statesmanship for our present and future public benefit and good. The scientist of our day sees the larger application of this growing subject, and he is beginning to direct his thought accordingly. Leaders of large industrial and railroad enterprises have become awakened to the significance of Conservation, and they are bringing their great influence to bear in promotion of the movement. Economists have changed their thought and modes of expression on account of this new influence of Conservation. Editorial expression has passed through a marked change because of this new modern movement, and this may be discovered especially in the modern high-class magazine. Even now the subject of Conservation has passed beyond the political field, and it has gone up into much higher applications. In truth, Conservation is Patriotism at its best, and even more than this. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
