

Introductory Lecture, Addressed to the Medical Class of Transylvania University: Session of 1849-50 (Classic Reprint) (Hardback)

By H M Bullitt

Forgotten Books, 2017. Hardback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Introductory Lecture, Addressed to the Medical Class of Transylvania University: Session of 1849-50 There is nothing which the student of medicine so much needs, at the outset of his career, as a plain and simple exposition of the nature and purposes of his profession; an exposition which not only exhibits to him what he has to do, but at the same time presents the motives, encouragements, and incentives to do it with suitable earnestness. Such an exposition it would not be practicable to condense into the narrow compass of an introductory lecture; but I trust I shall be able to Offer some hints and suggestions, which may aid you in realizing the dignity and importance of your undertaking. Man never labors well without some adequate inducement. To some men the strongest incentives to exertion are found in the prospect of private gain; others are urged to effort by the thirst for fame; and others again by the higher motive of serving their fellow men. Any one of these inducements - interest, ambition, or philanthropy may urge men on to respectable...
