

Islamic Financial Compliance: Setting Standards in a Conventional Financial World (Paperback)

By David Evans

Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2013. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .In today s ever expanding financial environment the expansion of compliance and regulatory changes has broadened over the years to influence not just domestic but also the international. The multinational approach taken by many financial organisations has resulted in financial institutions having to function under the influence of multiple regulatory bodies. This picture is further complicated for Islamic financial services organisations as they have to operate under not just the umbrella of the multitude of the regulatory bodies but also within the constraints of Shari ah standards including those presented by the AAOIFI and the IFSB. The desire to meet these standards is however often tempered by the legal constraints placed upon these organisations to comply with existing legislation. There are calls within Islamic financial services for a standardisation of approach to product definition, accounting and regulatory reporting and it is with this in mind that this book examines the options for establishing if standardisation within Islamic financial services is achievable. The book starts by exploring previous research on centralised standards examining work undertaken by the World Bank, the IMF...
