Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Statement in Answer to an Assertion Made by Sir William Hamilton, Bart,, Professor of Logic in the University of Edinburgh If I had felt any anger at the hasty and utterly groundless imputation which has given me the trouble of making this statement, I think the preceding letter would have removed it. There is something racy about the idea of private declaration and answer before going into court, circumstanced as we were. In cases of amicable literary controversy it would be an excellent plan, and would save a good deal of printing. But the notion of the prosecutor and the accused thief quietly interchanging their notes of evidence, and settling its balance before trial, would, if carried into effect, have vastly tickled the public, never indisposed to find jokes in controversies of this sort. I replied, March 30, by totally declining the arrangement, and calling upon Sir William, as he valued his own honour, either forthwith to retract, or publicly to attempt the proof of his accusation. I begged him to understand distinctly, that when I proposed to him to retract, it was because such a mark of consideration was usual and proper but that as far as I was concerned, I had much rather that he should attempt publicly to maintain his words. I added, that I should give no explanations except in print that had they been asked for in the first instance I would have given them; but certainly not to a person who had preferred to make facts of his surmises, and inferences of his suspicions. I now certainly thought I should draw him out. From that time to the limit fixed, the 10th of April,...
