Excerpt: .with the real capacity of highways and terminals, (ta) The Motor Transport Corps is in fact, and must be provided in law, the agent of the commander on the spot for providing mobility and adjusting the difficulties in the way of military effectiveness in such a manner as to give the commander at least an equal chance to defeat his enemy. The stumbling block in Traffic Control and the Remedy. 96, If the stumbling block to the attainment of the real value of highways in the crisis of battle is the name of the Motor Transport Corps, the answer is: change the name but do not mix highway traffic with types of transportation which are foreign to it in kind, purpose, organization, technique, routes, and higher control. Motor Transport Corps, 97, Each army, corps, division and section to military force requires its motor transport reserve in a descending scale as to size, A small military force requires no separate organization for its motor transport reserve, A very large number of extra vehicles in its operating pool is sufficient. The principle which applies to other military reserves applies equally to motor transport, Reserves must be provided for from the larger organizations to the smaller. The reserves in smaller organizations must be kept to that minimum number of extra vehicles necessary to give that flexibility which will prevent the stoppage of ordinary routine traffic by vehicles being damaged, destroyed or stalled in bad...
