Filaments 10, united at the base, 6 only bearing anthers; at the back is a large flattened filament terminated with a little mucro, nearly the same as in P. reniforme, P. cortuscefolium, and perhaps the whole of this section. Pollen yellow. Capsules very hairy. Arista villous. Style smooth, fleshcoloured. Stigmas 5, dark red, reflexed. Vol. i. o This curious plant is one of the mules which we noticed in our last number; it was first raised by Mr. Colvill, from seed produced between reniforme and cortusajfolium, and participates equally of the two, except in being a taller grower than either. It is a very desirable plant, as it continues to flower till late in autumn, after most of the showy kinds are over; it also flowers before them in spring, if kept tolerably warm and dry in the winter. The best soil to...
