Excerpt from The April Baby s Book of Tunes: With the Story of How They Came to Be Written They were about five, and six, and seven years old in the winter week I am going to tell you about. It was the week before Easter, when it oughtn t to have been winter at all; but strange things happen in the way of weather in those far-away forests where they live, and after having been quite like spring for a long while, it turned suddenly very cold. At first when it began to snow they were delighted, and got out their sleigh and their snow-boots, and harnessed their mother s big dog to the sleigh, and drove him up and down the paths, only laughing all the louder when he ran them against a tree and pitched them off into the snow. But the next day the snow was so deep that it covered the sleigh right up, and came over their knees, and got inside their stockings at the top, and made them very uncomfortable; so they stayed indoors, and finished...
