I am cold all over. We are almost dead with cold. His hands and feet will be cold. Are you also hungry? We have had great hunger and thirst. He has been very thirsty in this heat. My finger pains me. Is any thing the matter with him then? I cut my finger. His head has ached. Has he not caught cold? He has been very anxious concerning his affair. I am sorry for it. Do you find yourself better? I was better lately. My tooth aches much. That is bad. The pain will soon be over. My eye does not ache so much. I am very glad to hear it. I am glad of it. I was in such alarm upon his getting this accident. I rejoice at his not having broken fo leg. Do not disturb yourself about it. He dreams that all will go well. You must not dream of that. I regret what I have done. He is grieved to see her so de-jected. I think you wrong; you have made a mistake. That seems to me to be good. I fancied I saw a town. He grudges no labour. I am too warm in this room. He will be quite hot. I felt so strange. I felt as if I should sink down. My eyes grow dim. I think I see him coming. What would you please to have? What pleases...
