Martha s mom, fresh out of rehab, is shacking up with a total jerk in a run-down two-family in the ghetto. More than anything she s ever wanted, Martha wants to play the cello. But even music becomes a danger because nothing is what it seems in this place. With her mother s willpower dissolving, Martha watches helplessly as her own dreams slip farther away. But in an exhilarating twist that would stun even Cinderella, everything changes. A wealthy lawyer invites her into his family s home, and Martha is given a chance to start over. The warm, caring Brinkmans treat Martha like one of the family, and even though it feels so right, she knows they can t be as perfect as they seem. And she knows this fairy tale can t last forever . . .
